

How to Find A European Partner

- the basics -

Simon Grimley
Regional Representative
EURAXESS ASEAN

Get prepared

---

- Make sure your CV is up to date
- Consider using the Europass CV format

<https://europass.cedefop.europa.eu/documents/curriculum-vitae>

- Make sure your research profile and publications are up to date

Visibility

---

- Make yourself visible - use professional online research networks (e.g. ResearchGate), social media, blogs, public talks
- Make your research visible – are you publishing in the right journals and reaching the right audience?
- Is the journal widely indexed – will you find articles in relevant databases, and Google Scholar? Consider SOE
- What about open access?

Network

- Activate your personal network – think of people you’ve met. Ask your supervisor for contacts
- Follow the work of leading researchers and projects in your field
- Track your own research – see who might be citing you
- Attend conferences and network while you’re there

Use Your Own Initiative

- Be proactive, search for European partners yourself and contact them directly but ....
- Do not just ask – also offer something
- Use your professional e-mail account
- Do not always expect your e-mail to be read -
- Do not expect a reply even if your mail is read
- Ask one more time after after an appropriate period - do not pressure them

Sell yourself

---

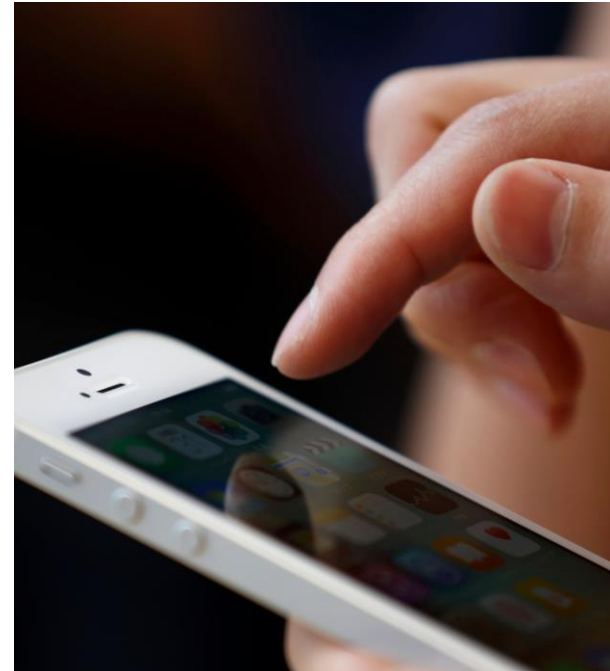

- Sell yourself, don't be modest!
- Show you have the skills relevant for the fellowship
- Explain why you should be awarded the research grant
- Explain how the fellowship will advance your career
